

MEXICAN MURDERERS FREE, LANSING HEARS

Reports Fail to Tell of Single Case in Which Bandits Have Been Executed.

Mexican policy from its inception. On his forthcoming "swing around the circle" in behalf of national defense, the President will take occasion to defend his Mexican policy.
After bitter and prolonged debate behind closed doors today, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee adjourned without taking any action on the Mexican question.
The nomination of Henry P. Fletcher as ambassador to Mexico City went over.

Mexico Controversy Has Only Begun. Is Belief of Senators

It is the conviction of Senators who have been closely following the situation, that only the beginning of the fierce controversy over Mexico has been heard in Congress, especially in the Senate.
Warning has been given by Senator Borah that if the Foreign Relations Committee does not act on some of the Mexican resolutions before it, he will find a way of bringing the subject before the Senate.
This could be done on a motion to discharge the committee. Such a motion would stir up an even more strenuous tumult than any which has been aroused thus far.
The committee, if Senator Stone can command it, will place on the floor all resolutions. But the situation in the committee is close and Senator Stone realizes he is sitting over a volcano.

To Seek Action.
Today is the regular meeting day of the Foreign Relations Committee. Proponents of the pending resolutions will try to get them considered.
As has been the case ever since the Santa Ysabel massacre, there is no real indication that a resolution looking to intervention in any form, disguised or otherwise, can be adopted by Congress. Nevertheless, there is a great deal of apprehension caused among Administration leaders by the seething assaults on the Administration course as to Mexico. This feeling of apprehension was clearly voiced in the debate yesterday by Senator Newlands, when he recounted with colorful detail how McKinley, against his will and judgment, was "picked into war" with Spain and pleaded with the Republicans not to force the country into war now by the same process then employed.

Plot to Kill Yuan Shi Kai Foiled, Bombs in Palace

PEKING, Jan. 19.—Numerous arrests were made here today in a plot to blow up Yuan Shi Kai, who recently accepted the Chinese throne. Explosive bombs were discovered in the Emperor's palace.

Yuan Shi Kai's acceptance of the throne has been followed by several outbreaks by anti-monarchists and finally by the inauguration of a revolution to unseat the Chinese ruler.
Though government troops were dispatched to Yunnan province more than two weeks ago, Peking has not yet claimed suppression of the revolutionists, who are reported to number more than 30,000.

tee today postponed indefinitely action on the Dyer and Moss resolutions. Moss appeared, but was told the committee would not give him a hearing until after it concludes consideration of the annual diplomatic appropriation bill. The appropriation bill was used to head off immediate discussion in the House of the Mexican situation.

EL PASO, Jan. 19.—General Carranza's death order has thrown a chill of horror into the hearts of Mexican bandits. The public parade of the corpse of bandit to show the fate of the lawless has driven the outlaws further into the mountains today.
With the reported murder of two more Americans near Torreon still unconfirmed, Carranza officials in Juarez are confident that the campaign of extermination will satisfactorily avenge the slaughter of Americans at Santa Ysabel. Carranza, a Villista leader, will be the next to die. After he is shot here or in Chihuahua City, his corpse will be added to the public display of the dead bodies of Jose Rodriguez and Miguel Baca Valles.
According to some witnesses of the execution, Carranza and his followers, including the captured leader of the bandits, begged for their lives. Rodriguez, once a daring leader of Villista cavalry, was shot as he crept on the ground.
The object of a great bandit hunt on today in the mountains of Chihuahua and Durango states was the capture of Francisco Villa. Carranza officials said they would only be satisfied when they displayed the bandit chief's bullet-riddled corpse in public.

OLD WALKER-HUGHES MARKET SITE SOLD

W. Gordon Crawford, realty broker, has reported the sale of the former site of the Walker-Hughes Market, in Connecticut avenue across from De Sales place, to an out-of-town investor. The property, which was owned by W. La-brot, brought approximately $100,000. It has a frontage of sixty feet on Connecticut avenue, and extends through to Eighteenth street, the building occupying about one-half of the lot.
It is understood that the purchaser will remodel the present structure, enlarging it for business purposes. Twelve thousand feet of floor space is obtainable.
Since the Walker-Hughes Company moved to their new quarters more than a year ago, the building has been vacant. It was erected about ten years ago, being first occupied by the Stump & Leford Company. The structure is most imposing, two large, central pillars supporting a portico and forming an entrance to a spacious hall surrounded by a balcony. Two large plate-glass windows occupy practically the entire front of the building, which is of limestone.

ALLIES' COUNCIL OF WAR IN SESSION

Balkan Developments Believed to Be Cause of Meeting of Chiefs in London.

The allies decided to continue to pursue the Balkan campaign and land more troops at Saloniki.
Scarcely any press dispatches from Athens have been passed by the Greek censor in the past three days, and this fact alone is considered ominous. In view of the German reports.
London newspapers complain that they have been unable to get replies to queries addressed to their correspondents at the Greek capital. German newspapers hint at a possible revolution, headed by former Premier Venizelos, and express doubt as to whether King Constantine will have the support of the Greek army in a real crisis. An Athens dispatch to the Daily News declaring that the Greek government is about to declare martial law to put an end to "dangerous rumors" was permitted to pass by the Greek censor.
London diplomats profess to have no knowledge of the intentions of ex-Premier Venizelos, leader of the Greek party that favored Greek participation in the war on the side of the allies. Venizelos and his followers did not participate in the recent special election called by the King, declaring the proceeding illegal. It was reported several weeks ago that the Venizelos party might refuse to accept the results of the election, precipitating a crisis when Parliament meets next Monday.

Troops Withdrawn.
All Greek troops except one battalion will be withdrawn from the Greco-Bulgarian frontier. It was announced today by the Athens government because of the difficulty of obtaining provisions for them. It was officially stated that England has agreed to export 5,000 tons of coal to Greece, eliminating the possibilities of a tie-up of the Greek railroads.
It is possible that a reason other than the difficulty of provisioning the Greek troops forced their withdrawal from the Greco-Bulgarian frontier. Allied diplomats on several occasions have urged the Greek King to withdraw troops from both the Serbian and Bulgarian frontiers.

Russian Offense in Caucasus Blocked,
Says Constantinople
CONSTANTINOPLE (via Berlin), Jan. 19.—The Russian offensive in the Caucasus has been blocked by the Turkish forces. The Turkish army has been successful in repelling the Russian advance in several places. The Turkish forces are now holding the line and the Russian offensive is considered to be blocked for the present.

Proposes Jaunt 'Round Capital by City Rulers

While the mercury is hovering below the freezing point the District Commissioners are considering, more or less seriously, an invitation received from the Rev. John Van Schick, former president of the Monday Evening Club, and a recent worker in the European war zone, to take a walk over the District's boundary lines. The route suggested is from Chesapeake Junction to Burville, to Kentworth, to Mt. Rainier, to Takoma Park, to the outskirts of Silver Springs, and other hamlets.

"Walking," says Mr. Van Schick, "is the oldest and most honorable of all methods of moving from place to place. It is essentially democratic. Such a walk taken by the Commissioners in these degenerate days of motor cars, and made known, as it would be through the public press, would endear the Commissioners to all the inhabitants of the District."
"It would enable them to inspect conditions on the line, state of preservation of historic boundary stones and other markers, wash of District soil over into Maryland, deposit of Maryland trash on District territory, feasibility of the line boulevard project, and call their attention to one of the most dangerous and demoralizing problems of our day, hygienic houses half in Maryland and half in the District."
"Arrangements could be made for motion pictures showing the Commissioners fording streams, lending fences, negotiating upon one of the old boundary lines of 1792. These pictures would be enormously popular, and if wisely managed large sums might be realized for charity. Such action by the Commissioners might lead to the establishment of a custom and the appointment of a regular day or days known as 'walking the boundary day' or 'day'." Such an observance would redress the lines of patriotism in the hearts of our citizens, silence the critic and aid mightily in the solving of all vexing social problems.
A committee of one hundred representative citizens could be designated to make the necessary arrangements. If thought wise the Commissioners might invite former members of the board, like Justice Sigsbee, Colonel Truesdell, H. R. E. Macfarland, Cuno H. Rudolph, to follow in line, and lend additional dignity to the occasion.
"I have already communicated with members of the District Committees of both houses of Congress and find all parties favorable to the project, and have assurances of a unanimous vote for generous appropriations for suitable public services and memorials which might be necessary if any untoward results should follow this annual excursion."
While the Commissioners declined today to state whether they will accept Mr. Van Schick's suggestion, their probable course will be to let it on the table until weather conditions are more propitious.

Officers to Pay Visit To Spanish War Camp

Commander-in-Chief L. C. Dyer and Department Commander J. Q. A. Braden, of the United States War Veterans, will pay an official visit to Gen. M. Emmet Ullery Camp, No. 3, this evening, at the Pythian Temple.
It is expected every member of the camp will be present.

HOT WATER THE BEST LIVER AND BOWEL MEDICINE

Says Glass of hot water before breakfast washes poisons from system.

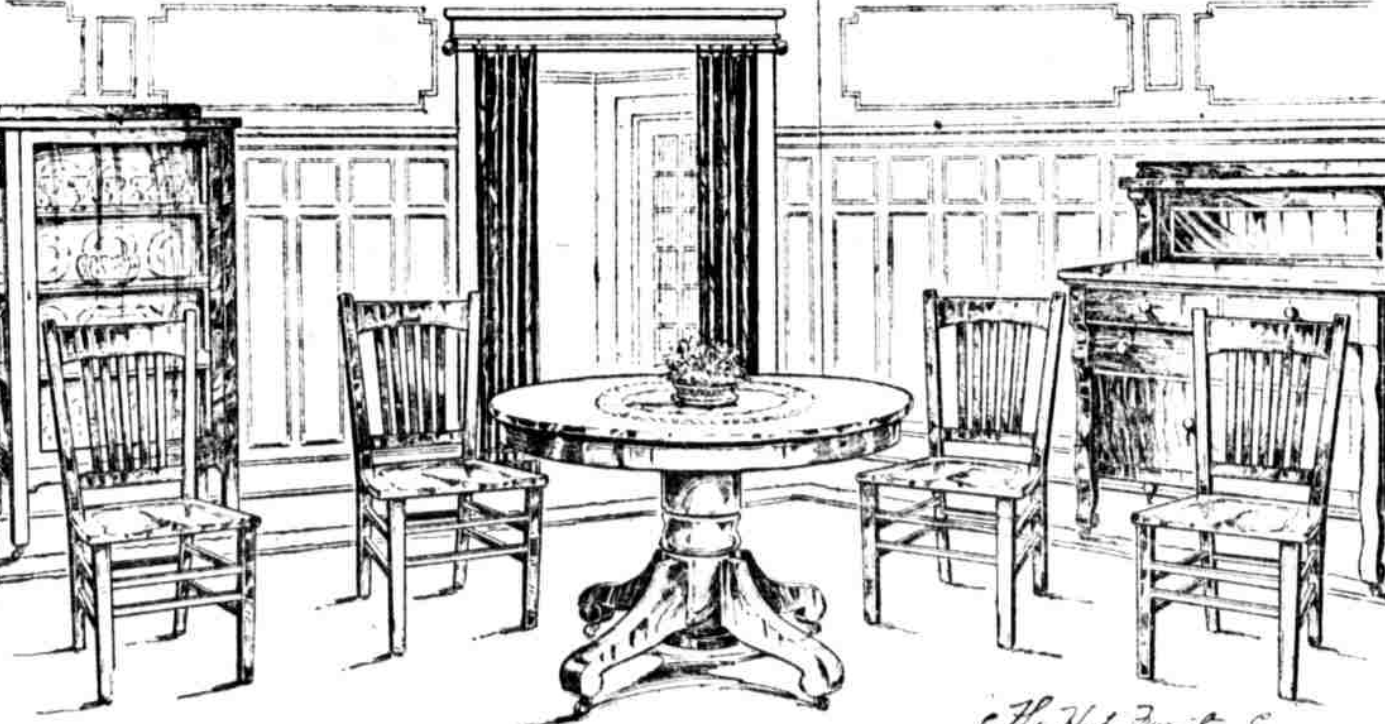

Physicians the world over recommend the intake both of drinking this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of indigestible material, such as food, are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of lime-stone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.
Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.
Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, a slow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of this bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.—Advt.

Protect Our Good Name

GOODYEAR

STRIPPED to the waist, his huge torso streaming with sweat, a workman swings the heavy iron core to an iron table, and wrenches off a tire which has just come steaming from the heater.

His eye falls on the legend over his head, and he smiles.

Our good name is also his good name.

The two are intertwined.

He will protect the one while he subserves the other.

His thoughts are—as they should be—chiefly of himself, of his little home, and of his family.

Their good name, his good name, our good name—his good work will stand guard over them all.

Two thousand miles away in Seattle, we will say the same thought in the same simple words.

An irritating moment has arrived—the temptation to speak sharply to a customer, to fling a slur at unworthy competition.

The salesman, or the manager, or whoever it may be, looks up, and the quiet admonition meets his eye.

Protect our good name.

In a twinkling it smoothes the wrinkles out of his point of view.

He is himself again—a man with a responsibility which he could not escape if he would; and would not, if he could.

Back two thousand miles again to the factories—this time to the experimental room.

An alluring chance to save—to make more profit by skimping, by substitution. No one will ever know. But—the silent monitor repeats its impressive admonition.

Protect our good name.

What chance to compromise with conscience in the presence of that vigilant guardian?

Thousands of men striving to keep a name clean.

And keeping their own clean in the process.

We Americans, it is said, make a god out of business.

Let the slur stand.

Whether it be true or not it is true that business is our very life.

Shall it be a reproach to us that we try to make business as good as it can be made?

Think of this business, please, in the light of its great animating thought:

Protect our good name.

We are thinking of you, always, when we say it—you American millions, and you millions in the old world.

We think of you judging us—by what we are, by what we do, by what we make.

We think of tens of thousands of homes in which our name can be made to stand for that which is worthy and worth while.

We must not lose your good will—we must not tarnish our good name.

You can call that anything you like.

You can call it business, or sentiment, or idealism, or nonsense.

It may be all of these.

It may even be that which our national critics call making a god of business.

But at least it gives to us a motive that is bigger and broader and deeper than money.

It makes thousands of men happier in their work and more faithful to it.

It has made of this business a democracy of unfettered thought—a democracy of common endeavor—a democracy of purpose and principle.

And here is the oddest thing of all:—

The more we live up to this "impractical" ideal, the greater the business grows.

The more we labor for the future, the more we profit in the present.

The more we strive for character, the greater the reward in money.

The more we put into our product, the more we take out in sales.

Perhaps, after all, there is more than one sense in which it is good to make a god out of business.

We think so.

And we think you think so.
